

PRICE ONE CENT.

EXTRA. 2 O'CLOCK.

ERIN'S DAY

The City in Gala Attire in Honor of St. Patrick.

Everywhere the Flag of the Emerald Isle Floats in the Breeze.

Two Big Parades of Irish Societies This Afternoon.

Mayor Grant to Review Thousands of Sons of Ireland.

Banquets This Evening, With Speeches of World-Wide Honors.

Find the author of the old adage, "It always rains on St. Patrick's Day," been alive this morning, he would have been driven almost to death by mortification over the failure of his prophecy. The certainly a fairer day was never seen.

A clear, almost cloudless sky and a bright warm sun that made the cool breeze air just comfortable without impairing its invigorating freshness, succeeded in making this St. Patrick's Day one of the finest on record.

THE IRISH FLAG.

Ahead of the civic societies were drawn up the Hibernian Riders, Capt. William Judge, accompanied by St. Patrick's Alliance Guard, Capt. Thos. Canfield.

It was a matter of considerable regret that the Fifty-ninth Regiment was not led the parade, as last year, but at the request of Archdeacon Corrigan the regiment marched to the Cathedral this morning and attended mass in full uniform.

Grand Marshal Maigueen and his aides, John J. Dixie and Peter McGovern, followed by carriages containing the officers and members of the Convention of Irish societies, were to lead the parade, which moves at 1 o'clock over this line of march:

Poor Tim Curley, in his stirring efforts to break the phenomenal record of Charlie Rowell for the first twenty-four hours, went to earth last night suffering with a badly sprained ankle.

Rowell's record was 165 miles, made in the States in 1880. Curley has run 150 miles, and went to bed at midnight.

Rowell broke down in the interests of the race or that first day's work being too much for him.

SCENE ON FIFTH AVENUE.

Fifth Avenue to Thirtieth street, to Broadway, to Fourteenth street, around Washington Monument to Broadway, to Seventeenth street, passing in front of the grand stand for review by His Honor the Mayor and the city authorities; to Fifth Avenue, to Eighteenth street, to Eleventh Boulevard, to Jones's Wood Coliseum, and there to take part in the grand demonstration the proceeds of which are for the building of a new hall for the Ancient Order of Hibernians of New York County. Recorder's birth is to deliver an address.

HANNAH M'GOWAN'S BIG PROCESSION.

This parade was in charge of Marshal John McGoowen, who moved his procession at 12 o'clock. The Irish Volunteers, under Capt. F. J. Coleman, acted as the military escort, and the rest of the parade being principally made up of civic societies. The line of march was as follows:

JOHN HUGHES.

John Hughes, the Police Gazette champion of long, long ago, thinks he has struck that happy medium, and it is the exact science of the happy medium that the odds are struggling for.

Jimmy Albert ran only 150 miles the first day in his race in February, 1886, yet did better in the end than Paddy Flanagan, George Hensel, Rowell or any of the champion peddlers in the race and the championship to 150 miles.

In December of the same year George Littlewood bested Albert's record, winning the championship in 150 miles; yet he was only 150 miles on the first day, or fifteen miles less than he ran on the first day of the race in May, 1886, when he failed in beating Albert's record.

Judge Hughes, the Police Gazette champion of long, long ago, thinks he has struck that happy medium. He had covered 150 1/2 miles at midnight, the end of the first day, and was in excellent form for St. Patrick's Day.

Pete Rowell was the nearest man to the leader, the other was ten miles behind him.

"I'll run 150 miles for St. Patrick's Day," said Hughes to the Evening World reporter.

"I am feeling fine, and I'll beat that Englishman's record."

At 6 o'clock this morning Lauer Hughes started 150 miles, 20 miles behind Rowell's record, but six miles better than Albert's record and 20 miles better than Littlewood's record for six days.

Jack Hughes is in prime condition to-day, and runs with as much ease as in the start. He said that he would, barring accidents, and his old enemy rheumatism, surely beat Littlewood's 150 miles record for six days.

John Hughes, the Police Gazette champion

of long, long ago, thinks he has struck that happy medium.

He had covered 150 1/2 miles at midnight, the end of the first day, and was in excellent form for St. Patrick's Day.

Pete Rowell was the nearest man to the leader, the other was ten miles behind him.

"I'll run 150 miles for St. Patrick's Day," said Hughes to the Evening World reporter.

"I am feeling fine, and I'll beat that Englishman's record."

At 6 o'clock this morning Lauer Hughes started 150 miles, 20 miles behind Rowell's record, but six miles better than Albert's record and 20 miles better than Littlewood's record for six days.

Jack Hughes is in prime condition to-day, and runs with as much ease as in the start. He said that he would, barring accidents, and his old enemy rheumatism, surely beat Littlewood's 150 miles record for six days.

John Hughes, the Police Gazette champion

of long, long ago, thinks he has struck that happy medium.

He had covered 150 1/2 miles at midnight, the end of the first day, and was in excellent form for St. Patrick's Day.

Pete Rowell was the nearest man to the leader, the other was ten miles behind him.

"I'll run 150 miles for St. Patrick's Day," said Hughes to the Evening World reporter.

"I am feeling fine, and I'll beat that Englishman's record."

At 6 o'clock this morning Lauer Hughes started 150 miles, 20 miles behind Rowell's record, but six miles better than Albert's record and 20 miles better than Littlewood's record for six days.

Jack Hughes is in prime condition to-day,

and runs with as much ease as in the start. He said that he would, barring accidents, and his old enemy rheumatism, surely beat Littlewood's 150 miles record for six days.

John Hughes, the Police Gazette champion

of long, long ago, thinks he has struck that happy medium.

He had covered 150 1/2 miles at midnight, the end of the first day, and was in excellent form for St. Patrick's Day.

Pete Rowell was the nearest man to the leader, the other was ten miles behind him.

"I'll run 150 miles for St. Patrick's Day," said Hughes to the Evening World reporter.

"I am feeling fine, and I'll beat that Englishman's record."

At 6 o'clock this morning Lauer Hughes started 150 miles, 20 miles behind Rowell's record, but six miles better than Albert's record and 20 miles better than Littlewood's record for six days.

Jack Hughes is in prime condition to-day,

and runs with as much ease as in the start. He said that he would, barring accidents, and his old enemy rheumatism, surely beat Littlewood's 150 miles record for six days.

John Hughes, the Police Gazette champion

of long, long ago, thinks he has struck that happy medium.

He had covered 150 1/2 miles at midnight, the end of the first day, and was in excellent form for St. Patrick's Day.

Pete Rowell was the nearest man to the leader, the other was ten miles behind him.

"I'll run 150 miles for St. Patrick's Day," said Hughes to the Evening World reporter.

"I am feeling fine, and I'll beat that Englishman's record."

At 6 o'clock this morning Lauer Hughes started 150 miles, 20 miles behind Rowell's record, but six miles better than Albert's record and 20 miles better than Littlewood's record for six days.

Jack Hughes is in prime condition to-day,

and runs with as much ease as in the start. He said that he would, barring accidents, and his old enemy rheumatism, surely beat Littlewood's 150 miles record for six days.

John Hughes, the Police Gazette champion

of long, long ago, thinks he has struck that happy medium.

He had covered 150 1/2 miles at midnight, the end of the first day, and was in excellent form for St. Patrick's Day.

Pete Rowell was the nearest man to the leader, the other was ten miles behind him.

"I'll run 150 miles for St. Patrick's Day," said Hughes to the Evening World reporter.

"I am feeling fine, and I'll beat that Englishman's record."

At 6 o'clock this morning Lauer Hughes started 150 miles, 20 miles behind Rowell's record, but six miles better than Albert's record and 20 miles better than Littlewood's record for six days.

Jack Hughes is in prime condition to-day,

and runs with as much ease as in the start. He said that he would, barring accidents, and his old enemy rheumatism, surely beat Littlewood's 150 miles record for six days.

John Hughes, the Police Gazette champion

of long, long ago, thinks he has struck that happy medium.

He had covered 150 1/2 miles at midnight, the end of the first day, and was in excellent form for St. Patrick's Day.

Pete Rowell was the nearest man to the leader, the other was ten miles behind him.

"I'll run 150 miles for St. Patrick's Day," said Hughes to the Evening World reporter.

"I am feeling fine, and I'll beat that Englishman's record."

At 6 o'clock this morning Lauer Hughes started 150 miles, 20 miles behind Rowell's record, but six miles better than Albert's record and 20 miles better than Littlewood's record for six days.

Jack Hughes is in prime condition to-day,

and runs with as much ease as in the start. He said that he would, barring accidents, and his old enemy rheumatism, surely beat Littlewood's 150 miles record for six days.

John Hughes, the Police Gazette champion

of long, long ago, thinks he has struck that happy medium.

He had covered 150 1/2 miles at midnight, the end of the first day, and was in excellent form for St. Patrick's Day.

Pete Rowell was the nearest man to the leader, the other was ten miles behind him.

"I'll run 150 miles for St. Patrick's Day," said Hughes to the Evening World reporter.

"I am feeling fine, and I'll beat that Englishman's record."

At 6 o'clock this morning Lauer Hughes started 150 miles, 20 miles behind Rowell's record, but six miles better than Albert's record and 20 miles better than Littlewood's record for six days.

Jack Hughes is in prime condition to-day,

and runs with as much ease as in the start. He said that he would, barring accidents, and his old enemy rheumatism, surely beat Littlewood's 150 miles record for six days.

John Hughes, the Police Gazette champion

of long, long ago, thinks he has struck that happy medium.

He had covered 150 1/2 miles at midnight, the end of the first day, and was in excellent form for St. Patrick's Day.

Pete Rowell was the nearest man to the leader, the other was ten miles behind him.

"I'll run 150 miles for St. Patrick's Day," said Hughes to the Evening World reporter.

"I am feeling fine, and I'll beat that Englishman's record."

At 6 o'clock this morning Lauer Hughes started 150 miles, 20 miles behind Rowell's record, but six miles better than Albert's record and 20 miles better than Littlewood's record for six days.

Jack Hughes is in prime condition to-day,

and runs with as much ease as in the start. He said that he would, barring accidents, and his old enemy rheumatism, surely beat Littlewood's 150 miles record for six days.

John Hughes, the Police Gazette champion

of long, long ago, thinks he has struck that happy medium.

He had covered 150 1/2 miles at midnight, the end of the first day, and was in excellent form for St. Patrick's Day.

Pete Rowell was the nearest man to the leader, the other was ten miles behind him.

"I'll run 150 miles for St. Patrick's Day," said Hughes to the Evening World reporter.

"I am feeling fine, and I'll beat that Englishman's record."

At 6 o'clock this morning Lauer Hughes started 150 miles, 20 miles behind Rowell's record, but six miles better than Albert's record and 20 miles better than Littlewood's record for six days.

Jack Hughes is in prime condition to-day,

and runs with as much ease as in the start. He said that he would, barring accidents, and his old enemy rheumatism, surely beat Littlewood's 150 miles record for six days.

John Hughes, the Police Gazette champion

of long, long ago, thinks he has struck that happy medium.

He had covered 150 1/2 miles at midnight, the end of the first day, and was in excellent form for St. Patrick's Day.

Pete Rowell was the nearest man to the leader, the other was ten miles behind him.

"I'll run 150 miles for St. Patrick's Day," said Hughes to the Evening World reporter.

"I am feeling fine, and I'll beat that Englishman's record."

At 6 o'clock this morning Lauer Hughes started 150 miles, 20 miles behind Rowell's record, but six miles better than Albert's record and 20 miles better than Littlewood's record for six days.

Jack Hughes is in prime condition to-day,

and runs with as much ease as in the start. He said that he would, barring accidents, and his old enemy rheumatism, surely beat Littlewood's 150 miles record for six days.

John Hughes, the Police Gazette champion

of long, long ago, thinks he has struck that happy medium.

He had covered 150 1/2 miles at midnight, the end of the first day, and was in excellent form for St. Patrick's Day.

Pete Rowell was the nearest man to the leader, the other was ten miles behind him.

"I'll run 150 miles for St. Patrick's Day," said Hughes to the Evening World reporter.

"I am feeling fine, and I'll beat that Englishman's record."